

Flirting With a Guy

Do you know how to flirt with a guy and make him smile like crazy? Do you know how to talk the language of dating? Can you communicate your interest and make him like you back? If you're still clueless about how to approach a man in a way that would make him want to know more about you, then you have just stumbled into the right page. Read on and find out the best way to flirt with a guy and make his day.

You don't have to be a model or wear really provocative clothes for you to get a man hooked. You can easily get guys just by being presentable and pretty. Wear perfume. Put on a little makeup and make sure that your breath is fresh. Finally, wear your best personality before you go out the door and prepare for a night of fun and flirting .

The eye contact

Everything starts with the eye contact. Stare at that guy you're attracted to from across the room. He's bound to feel that someone is looking at him and when he does, take your eyes off him and put a little sheepish smile that says you're embarrassed to be caught staring. On the next instance, hold his glance. By the third eye contact, he's probably about to make a move on you so get ready for the next step.

The conversation

Guys love it when they talk about themselves and girls listen. But you don't have to sound patronizing by offering nothing into the conversation but praises and agreements. You want to hold your end by showing him that you know a bit as well. Express your interest in what he has to say. Encourage him to talk but don't stay mute the whole night.

Praises are great but don't go overboard. It's okay to compliment a guy for his new haircut or his shirt but only if you really mean it. Bu if you're just throwing a compliment just so you would look good, be ready for a possible backfire. You'll just come across as phony.

Tease him

If you're already dating or you've known each other for a while, it's safe to move on to a little bit of teasing to flirt with your guy. This doesn't have to mean trash talk. It can mean really innocent comments that will make his day, like telling him how he sexy he looks wearing that new shirt or in a new haircut. You can even tease - as in make fun of - him. Guys love humor. Share a secret joke while you're in a group.
